Health of an Aging America: 1994 Bibliography

Guide to Reports About Older Americans From the National Center for Health Statistics

by Robin A. Cohen, Ph.D.

Introduction

This bibliography is a guide to reports from the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) on the health of older Americans. It covers reports and electronic data products based on surveys conducted by NCHS within the past 10 years.

Older Americans represent the most rapidly growing segment of the U.S. population. The “graying” of America has intensified the need for data about aging and the health of older Americans. This 1994 bibliography, a guide by subject to recent NCHS reports about various aspects of aging and the health of America’s older citizens, was prepared in response to that need. It is the second in a series of guides to NCHS data about aging.

This bibliography is focused on NCHS reports published during the period 1990–94 that provide indepth data on aging, whether or not they deal exclusively with older persons. There has been a 120-percent increase in reports that include indepth data on aging since the first bibliography (1984–89). Other additions to this bibliography are the inclusion of electronic data products, identification of specific topics in comprehensive reports on aging, and a section on reports from the Interagency Forum on Aging-Related Statistics. Two general criteria were used to select reports:

- Data must have been gathered since 1984.
- The presentation of data on older Americans must include detail by age, that is, a division into at least two subgroups of persons 65 years of age and over, for example, 65–74 years and 75 years and over. A category of “65 years of age and over” was not sufficient because nearly all NCHS reports include this category.

Many of the reports listed are in the Vital and Health Statistics series, which contains detailed data analysis. Others are in Advance Data From Vital and Health Statistics, a series initiated in 1976 to provide early release of selected preliminary findings from NCHS surveys. Some Advance Data reports are followed by detailed Vital and Health Statistics reports. This bibliography is focused on NCHS reports published within the past 5 years. Reports included in the previously published bibliography Health of an Aging America: 1989 Bibliography are also included in this update in the sections titled "Reports prior to 1990" to provide an historic summary.

In this bibliography, reports are divided into subject categories:

1. Health status and demographic characteristics
 - Measures of health
 - Functioning
 - Chronic conditions
2. Health care
 - Ambulatory care
 - Hospitalization
 - Long-term care
3. Mortality
4. International
5. Special topics
 - Race
 - Rural
 - Mental illness
 - Nutrition
 - Policy
 - Conferences
6. Methodology: Programs, collection procedures, data evaluation
7. General publications
8. Electronic data products
9. Reports to be released in 1995
10. Reports from the Interagency Forum on Aging-Related Statistics

Reports focused on aging are listed first and are in boldface. These reports are followed by general reports that include some data on the elderly. Within each of these groups, Vital and Health Statistics series reports are listed first, followed by miscellaneous reports and then Advance Data reports. Publications are listed chronologically within each report type, with the most recent listed first. Reports that are available in earlier editions are denoted with an asterisk (*).

For information on how to obtain these reports, please see the section at the end of the bibliography.

Where and how to obtain publications

NCHS limits the free distribution of certain Center publications—Vital Statistics of the United States, Vital and Health Statistics series, and most miscellaneous reports—to libraries and other selected institutions, including U.S. Government Depository Libraries. While supplies last, single copies of publications not available from the Government Printing Office (GPO) or the National Technical Information Service (NTIS) may be requested, free of charge, from NCHS.

Government Printing Office

GPO stock numbers and prices are shown in this bibliography for all sale publications. Reports that are also available in earlier editions are denoted by an asterisk (*). To order reports individually or to establish a standing order for one or more series, contact:
